RED CROSS SEALS

With the placing of Red Cross Christmas Seals on sale there is inaugurated another short campaign against tuberculosis, the world's worst scourge. One-seventh of the deaths which occur every year are said to be due to this terrible disease, which claims its victims in all parts of the world and in every class of society. Until recently it was believed to be unconquerable, but it is yielding to intelligent, scientific treatment. The activities of those who are enlisted in the warfare against the white plague are not limited to means of cure, however, but include also the removal of the cause of consumption, in the form of better housing and improved sanitation.

A large portion of the money raised for the fight against tuberculosis is expended upon prevention, and every cent which goes for improved sanitary conditions and education of the masses, lifts the people up to a higher plane of living. The greatest aid to the movement has been the revenue from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals which amounted to $135,000 in 1908, jumping to $230,000 in 1909, $310,000 in 1910, $330,000 in 1911 and $409,000 last year. This year it is confidently expected that the sales will net half a million dollars. Canfield has done its share in the past, and this month should buy more Christmas seals than in any previous year. The cost is so trifling that few persons can offer any other excuse than indifference for failure to aid this worthy object.

A Test of the Parcel Post.

The parcel post will meet its severest test during the next two weeks. It was established at the end of the holiday season a year ago; it has, accordingly, never been called upon to handle the Christmas presents of the American people. It will be interesting to note how well the post meets the requirements of the time of stress.

Much will depend on the degree of co-operation which the public gives the postoffice department. If packages are well wrapped, carefully stamped and mailed as early as convenient it will be an immense help and the benefit will be shared generally by all patrons. Carelessness in these respects will cause confusion and unnecessarily hard work on the part of postal employees, but the greater penalty will be visited on the careless in the form of an inferior quality of service.

People are not fully alive to the possibilities of the parcel post as yet. This is a good time to learn what the service will do. Use the post. It belongs to all of us.
